Dear Mayor Bujalski;

I have read your below response to my e-mail concerning delinquent payments due on your boat slip at the Dunedin Marina.

Please do not question my human decency when, bottom line, we are dealing with use of position, special arrangements, taxpayers money and fairness to all Dunedin Citizens.

Your husband breaking his foot is an unfortunate family matter, and I am truly sorry this happened. Let me point out again that my concerns are fairness to our citizens. You see, you pointed out in your response, that you do not subject yourself to the same agreement rules as other slip owners. As Mayor, I think this is a very bad example for our citizens. The appearance obviously suggests you have used your elected position to benefit the needs of your family. You have crafted a unique deal with the city that is not available to all citizens, and certainly not transparent. I can only assume that in using the city attorney to "vet" your arrangements with the city, that he logically billed the city for his time. Also, from your comments, I can also assume you were not delinquent before your husbands accident.

When I decided to start up a business in Florida it did not take me long to realize I must sell my boat. I could no longer afford this luxury and have any chance of making the business a success. I think what is really missing here is that, "boats are a luxury, not a necessity", and you, as well as all slip owners, should be governed by the agreement that you signed.

Sincerely yours,

David R. Pauley
Concerned Citizen

He is self-employed and has no employees so when he cannot physically work, there is no paycheck. We were forced to use our savings to pay for things like our mortgage, groceries, and electric bill to get us through this difficult time. Unfortunately, it has been a struggle for our family to get back on solid ground but I'm happy to tell you that we are on our way.

As a matter of fact, my husband, set up a payment plan with the appropriate people in order to get us back on target several weeks ago, which was fully vetted by our city attorney. And yes, any late fees would be included.
